Frank Beats Coleman

The local tennis players drove to Coleman on Saturday last and gave the players at the west end of The Pass a severe wallop. There were twenty sets played and Frank won eighteen of them. Frank has easily the best players in The Pass and has several times beaten the "all stars" of Coleman.

Frank Tennis Players Challenge Coleman

A. V. Lang and S. Shone hereby challenge R. B. Buchanan and W. L. Clark, to a game of tennis to be played on neutral grounds—at Lethbridge, if necessary—each side to put up $25 and the winning money to be given to some charitable institution.

The Allies Storming the Fort

Dr. Warnock, the Liberal Standard Bearer, to the Electors of the Federal District of Macleod

GENTLEMEN—

Having accepted nomination as the Liberal standard bearer in the forthcoming election, and being an enthusiastic believer in the benefits to be derived from the reciprocity pact with the United States, I desire to place before you a few reasons why the cause I support should receive your endorsement at the polls.

In December, 1910, the farmers of Canada sent a large deputation to Ottawa to lay before the government their demands relative to reciprocal measures for the benefit of the farming interests, and a reciprocal agreement with the United States was one of the most important measures suggested.

About the same time the United States government sent representatives to Ottawa and announced that they were prepared to enter into negotiations with a view to arranging a reciprocal trade agreement, with the result that the reciprocity pact now before the people of Canada was reached and the approaching election is a referendum as to whether that agreement shall or shall not become law.

It is a well known fact that farm products, wheat, barley, oats, hay, flax, cattle and hogs command much better prices in the United States markets than are obtainable in Canada and with the duty removed you will have free access to the markets of the south and reap the advantage of higher prices for your products.

Access, duty free, to a new market of ninety million people, is what this reciprocal trade arrangement means and it is for the farmer to say whether he will accept or decline the offer put before him by the government.

The reciprocity agreement also provides for a considerable reduction on the duty of agricultural implements and this will enable the farmer to save money on his purchases of the many farm implements.

As a member of the United Farmers Association of Alberta I endorse the platform of that organization, and if sent to Ottawa as your representative I shall do everything in my power to bring about a further substantial reduction of the duty on agricultural implements at the earliest possible date.

The farmers of Canada through a deputation sent to Ottawa asked for reciprocity and those of you who follow the debate in the House know that but for the opposition of the Conservative party, reciprocity would now be in force and we should be getting the benefit. If you vote for the Liberal party and return that party to power you will have the agreement ratified just as soon as the parliament can be re-assembled.

As has been already pointed out, the Conservative party is opposed to this measure and by supporting their candidate you are assisting to elect that party to power and therefore assisting to destroy the reciprocal agreement.

The powerful industrial and financial interests of the east are opposed to the agreement and if the Conservatives get into power these interests will dictate the policy of that party and tariff reduction will be impossible. Reciprocity also means much to the consumers of Canada and is worthy of their support. The fact that many food stuffs can be imported free of duty from the United States should appeal to the consumers of this country who are anxious to see the cost of living reduced.

The reciprocal agreement will give a tremendous stimulus to the development of the large coal areas lying along the mountains. The removal of the duty on coke will enable Alberta coke to compete successfully with Pennsylvania coke in the markets of the great smelting centres of the United States and the result will be a largely increased output of our coal companies. New coal mining towns will spring up in these coalfields and new home markets for farm products.

Railways will be induced to come in from the south affording us better transportation facilities.

One of the arguments advanced by the Conservative party against the pact is that better trade relations with the United States will tend to make us disloyal to Britain and create a desire for political union with the United States.

But at the present time Canada does much larger volume of business annually with the United States than she does with Great Britain yet Canadians have never been termed disloyal. A prosperous people are always a loyal people and if we double our business with the United States that will not weaken our loyalty to Great Britain.

The Liberal party have in the past drawn together the bonds of Empire by giving British manufacturers a preference in Canada and will increase that preference. The Conservative party opposed the British preference almost as bitterly as they now oppose reciprocity, yet they now talk loudly of their loyalty to Britain.

Reciprocity with the United States will rapidly enhance the value of our lands. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company in Seattle state that the passing of the pact will increase the value of western Canada lands one hundred per cent. This message went to every homesteader.

In conclusion, I would say that I am not without parliamentary experience and I would point to my record in the provincial Legislature. If honored with your support at the polls on Sept. 21st, I shall do everything in my power to further the interests of the electors of Macleod constituency.

I sent to represent you at Ottawa I shall stand for immediate construction of railways for which charters are granted in the federal house as I have done in the provincial house. Be sure to cast your vote on Sept. 21st. A vote at home is useless. Vote for the Liberal party and reciprocity.

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen, Your obedient servant,

D. WARNOCK.

Liberal Fleeting at Frank

On Tuesday night the usual weekly meeting of the Frank Liberal Association was held in the committee rooms, Dominion avenue. There were had a large association, Mr. Harvey Murphy presided. The room was crowded, many being unable to gain admittance and had to be content with listening from the sidewalks and in the middle of the street to the very eloquent address of the president on current politics. Mr. Murphy based his address on statements that were made by Mr. H. Lyons at Mr. Palmer's meeting at Blairmore and Mr. Herron's meeting at Frank.

Mr. Harvey Murphy in a racy and interesting manner showed his hearers what the Liberal governments both federal and provincial had done for the great toiling masses of Western Canada. The passing of the 8-hour law for miners and the appointment of the railroad commission to enquire into the grievances of shippers and any others who had claims on the railroad companies. The extravagance and class legislation of the Conservative party when they were in power was ably shown up by the speaker and he finished up a fine peroration by asking his hearers what John Herron had ever done for them either inside or outside the House of Commons during the seven years he had represented this riding in parliament. Had he ever lifted up his voice to help these western provinces to obtain the control of their natural resources. Had he ever done anything to help the miners to obtain a technical education, to help them to pass in their examinations for fire bosses, pit bosses and mine managers' certificates. He contrasted John's friendship for the laboring classes with that of other representatives in other provinces and pointed out that down in Nova Scotia, where they had technical schools and evening classes that were second to none in any part of the world, that these schools were obtained through the strenuous efforts of the local representatives, who in nearly every case were Liberals. Mr. Murphy concluded his splendid address by urging his hearers if they wanted reforms to vote for the Liberal nominee—Dr. Warnock.

J. W. Gresham, J.P., also addressed the meeting and his remarks on the misrepresentation of the Conservative party in this riding were well received. At the close of the meeting it was decided to hold a smoker in the Miners' Hall, if that place was obtainable, on Monday evening next. Every body is invited no matter what is their political faith.

SOME RHODES STORIES

TRAITS OF THE GREAT SOUTH AFRICAN PIONEER.

Barney Barnato Was the Napoleon and he-ades the Wellington of the Diamond Fields in 1876—Now the Founder of Rhodesia—Had No Hesitation In Changing His Views.

In the diamond fields young Barney Barnato (real name Barnett Isaacs) and young Cecil Rhodes were recognized in 1874 as the two ablest speculators. Sir Lewis Mitchell, in his biography of Rhodes, calls Barnato the Napoleon and Rhodes the Wellington of that rough community. Rhodes, judging by appearances, was still a shy and awkward man addicted to classical studies, his ambitions unknown. A competent observer described him as a "faint young man" roughly dressed, coated with dust, sitting moodily on a bucket, dead to the chatter and rattle about him, his blue eyes fixed intently on his work or on some fabric of his brain.

Alfred Beit, of the same age as Rhodes, went to Kimberley from Hamburg as a diamond buyer in 1873. The two joined company in a wonderful career. They were the complement to each other. Sir Lewis Mitchell says, "The far-reaching aspirations of Rhodes were translated into accomplished facts by the intellectual and financial aid of his loyal friend. The mind acted and reacted on an another, and although Rhodes was ordinarily one of the most self-reliant of men, his phrase in great emergencies was 'What will Beit say?' There was plenty of hard life in Kimberley in the '70's. There was no railroad. Supplies, coming in on wagons, were two months on the road, and were sold at fabulous prices. The diggers lived in tents or in houses made of packing cases. Canned meat was the food. Fever and dysentery made their ravages. It looked as though there would be no more diamonds before the diggers came upon a supply that transcended the best hopes of the faithful.

Rhodes at one time needed a pump to get the water out of the mines. The only pump at all within reach was the property of Mr. Devenish, a farmer who watered his fields with it. Rhodes went to him again and again. He pestered him. The farmer in desperation mentioned a monstrous sum. "I'll take that pump," said Rhodes. He bought it at that price. Rhodes would fill the weather moderated otherwise with the wealth of his ore. "I will buy your ore," said Rhodes. He had no money left, but he sat down by the roadside and wrote out a check with a blank space. "You are a good sort of fellow," said the farmer. He accepted the check without demur and put the ore through the pump was got to the mines in time. Rhodes often spoke in praise of this faithful farmer. He called him one of nature's gentlemen, and always afterwards was willing to admit the good points of Boers.

There are many anecdotes illustrating the character of the man. One in Sir Lewis Mitchell's volume. He was "an incomparable host, a delightful and affectionate companion, who was careless in matters where no cash was concerned, but who was as exact as a banker. He lost a diamond worth $350 and took no steps to recover it. He never had any money in his pocket, and his banking account was frequently overdrawn. His securities were stored around in the pockets of old coats, and in other obscure places. Says the biographer: "He carried a set of books or a list of sums due to him. Secretaries of public companies were apt to complain that his dividend warrants were unduly outstanding, and he had to be searched ere they could be found. When he requested his check book in his own interests he issued checks on half-shops of notepaper, and even had the cases signed them in pencil. When in Rhodesia during the Matabele war his heart bled for the pecuniary losses suffered by his settlers, as he called them, and in the space of a few weeks he called on me to disburse about $50,000 to relieve the distress."

The biographer received a remittance from a trader in a village in the Northern Transvaal. The trader wrote that Rhodes had set him up in business years before he was expected, and now desired to repay loan with interest. We read that when this was reported to Rhodes he reacted indignantly at the world in general and exclaimed, "And yet they say men are not honest!"

grapher once remarked to Rhodes that he did not seem to care for money. For his own sake, no," was the emphatic reply. "I never tried to make it for its own sake, but it is a power, and I like power."

Rhodes was once accused of changing his views rather hurriedly. "Yes," he said, "as hurriedly as I could, for I found I was wrong." In the latter part of his life he said: "Every day I try to become humbler, but it is hard." A just was made upon his sentimental attachment to the Boers. They were the Voortrekkers," he replied, "the real pioneers. They have always led the way. It is your business to see that our flag follows."

When he traveled he read Plutarch's "Lives." "The Meditations of Marcus Aurelius," and Gibbon's great history. He warmly appreciated the self-sacrificing work of the Jesuits in Rhodesia, and he admired the Salvation Army.

His provision was sometimes at fault. He said that Lobengula would not fight and that nothing would make Kruger fire a shot.

A Duke In Canada.

Canada is to have among its summer residents this year, living on his own estate in the Maritimes, one who holds the highest rank in the peerage of the United Kingdom. The summer residence will be at the estate of the Leveson-Gower (pronounced Loo-ven-Gow), fourth Duke of Sutherland, in the Maritimes, near the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The duke is the largest land owner in Great Britain, his estates in England and Scotland aggregating 1,200,000 acres. The Sutherland tenants live in the bleakest and most barren part of the Highlands, where the struggle for existence is a hard one. Last year the duke, with the idea of establishing colonies of his Scottish tenants in Canada, West, where their toil would be more handsomely rewarded, bought 250,000 acres of land in Alberta and British Columbia, near the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific. The land purchased is of two kinds, one suitable for irrigation, the other for mixed farming. One hundred families were sent out, and settled on the land last year. During his visit this summer the duke intends to personally study the conditions of the people and to supervise the distribution of the land. He will likely be accompanied by the duchess, who is a sister of the present Earl of Rosslyn, the peer who was an actor for many years, and will be remembered by many readers as the Duke of Sutherland in the play "The Duke of Sutherland" performed on the stage.

Dr. Hogg's Appointment.

The new University of Saskatchewan, which is being rapidly developed in Saskatoon, is to have as its faculty some of the most promising young men in Canadian university circles. One of the latest appointments is that of Dr. J. L. Hogg, who has been appointed as lecturer in physics. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto, and has been for the last five years as professor of physics, and who has been very popular in his department. Prof. Hogg is a Canadian, a graduate of the University of Toronto, and has a wide reputation. He took post-graduate work at Harvard University, and while there published a series of papers on the subject of the self-construction of their prairie towns which he took to the attention of some of the foremost scientists of the world. He is to have charge of the department of physics at Saskatoon, and will have the opportunity of picking up the equipment of the laboratory. Two years ago the same university took from the staff of McMaster, Dr. R. H. Oliver, giving him an appointment as professor of history and economics.

These two young men are a distinct gain to the young university of the middle West, for their work will undoubtedly bring distinction to the star with which they are connected.

The Assurance of Melville. Melville, Sask., is in the three-year-old class of those who do not create, who hardly look her age. She sprang into being in a night when the steel of the Grand Trunk Pacific was laid at her doors, and her modest mother, flattered in the breeze the day of R. L. Borden, party arrived there. "Eventually you must come to Melville, why not now?" (There is something about the self-construction of their prairie towns which grips an easterner). However, Melville boasts of a $100,000 real brick hotel and one of the largest skating rinks in the West—Saturday Night.

A POLYGOT PERSON.

Dramatist Louis N. Parker Can Claim Several Countries as His Own.

Mr. Louis N. Parker, who arranged the procession in connection with the Shakespeare ball at the Royal Albert Hall, recently, is a man of varied talents. His father was an American, his mother an Englishwoman, he was born in France, his first language was Italian, and he was educated in Germany.

Mr. Parker first came as a student to the Royal Academy of Music in London, and while studying music became an ardent first-nighter at theatre and opera.

Of his many friends in those days was Sir Herbert Tree. "I remember one famous first night," says Mr. Parker, "at the Lyceum when we stood before the pit entrance from ten in the morning in order to see Irving as Iago. Both as Othello, and Ellen Terry as Desdemona. The crush was terrific, and just before opening time an old gentleman immediately in front of me fainted. As there was no other way of getting him out, we hauled him over the people's heads."

But Mr. Parker did not waste his time at the Royal Academy of Music. Shortly after leaving he was made Director of Music at Sherborne School. Here he got through an enormous amount of musical composition, and he was also responsible for the erection of a "model theatre" on the site of the old one.

It was in this little theatre that Mr. Parker's first play was performed. It was called "A Buried Talent," and had quite a romantic interest. Mr. Parker had given the manuscript to a local man to print, and the latter, the late Norman Leslie one day entered the printer's little shop, saw the play, took it to his lodgings, and then found the author, with whom he made arrangements for its immediate production.

Mr. Leslie, however, disappeared, and for long nothing further was heard of "A Buried Talent," until one day Mr. Parker received a letter from Mr. Ben Greet offering to produce it.

Tapestries May Leave England.

Unless some effort is made to retain the famous Mortlake tapestries, after Raphael's death it seems probable that they will find their way to America, as it is understood that the Duke of Devonshire is offering to sell them. These tapestries are an example of an art lost to England since the closing of the famous Mortlake tapestry works over 200 years ago. The only two specimens of this work belonging to the public are at the Victoria and Albert Museum, and are far inferior to these Belvoir Castle tapestries. The one about to be purchased for South Kensington was woven in the Brussels' silk' last year.

These seven pieces are in an excellent state of preservation. They were made at Mortlake for King Charles I. and subsequently sold by Oliver Cromwell to Lord Haddford, who kept them for many years in Haddford Hall, and came into the possession of the Duke of Devonshire's family with their building. They are now in the chapel at Belvoir Castle.

The Biggest of All Nests.

The nests of the jungle-fowl, so-called, in Australia are not only the largest of nests, but the heaviest as well. These nests are built in the form of great mud domes, the average diameter in height being fifteen feet. In circumference they are about one hundred and fifty feet. They are constructed in secluded, sheltered spots, and are skillfully interwoven with grass, and twigs, together with such other suitable material as the fowl has been able to obtain. The jungle turkey employs a similar system in the construction of its nest, though its home is more comprehensive in design. The shape is pyramidal, and the Australian naturalists aver that the nests of the bush turkeys are sometimes so large that the services of several men are required to remove them.

Two Scotch Stories.

A Scotch schoolmaster in Banffshire years ago had strong views on the subject of dress. In the day when crinolines was the rage a girl came to school with a very extensive one, which she wore over her dress. When the dean and the form on which she had to sit. The teacher, seeing this, said to her, "Gang aw' home and tak' off the girls' hoops, and come back to the school as God made ye."

Another rough and ready domineer was examining his boys in a catechism and asked if God had a beginning. "No," said the boy. "Will he have an end?" "Yes," he replied. "Will he be getting on?" "No," said the boy on the side of the head. "Will he have an end now?" "No," said the boy, and the master was satisfied.

Pulling Teeth In Scotland.

An old Scotchwoman journeyed to London to visit her son, who was taken with a jumping toothache and upon the advice of her son visited a dentist. She soon had the offending molar lying in the air. With a sigh of relief the old lady climbed out of the chair and asked:

"Ten shillings, mam," replied the dentist.

"Ten shillings, is it, ye robbin'?" screamed the woman. "Why, I'll ha' ye know, Sandy MacPherson 'ad just use about the samity for a seepin'."

An Oversight.

"I trust you slept comfortably and had everything you needed," said Sandy MacPherson's hostess one cold winter's night.

"Ay, well enough," replied her guest, a venerable Scot, but I dinna see a valuable bit of yon bottle in the bed."

"Why, wasn't the water hot?" the hostess asked in surprise. "The water was hot," responded MacPherson, "but ye forgot to put anything in it."

Getting Rid of Them Quick

A teacher, wishing to impress upon her pupils the population of China said:

"The population of China is so great that every time you breathe two Chinamen die."

In a short time a little boy at the foot of the class was noticed by the teacher to be breathing and puffing vigorously. The teacher, much alarmed at his actions, inquired:

"What of the matter? What on earth are you doing?"

"Killing Chinamen," was the quick reply.

"But that's like shooting foreigners. I'm getting rid of them as quick as I can."

When going away from home, or at any change of habitat, he is a man who numbers among his belongings a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dyspepsia Cordial. Changes of food and water in travel, and the various ailments which doctors may bring on an attack of dyspepsia, are all cured by this Cordial, at hand with which to cope with the ailments of the stomach, and to successfully fight the ailments and abuse it.

Exactly So.

"It isn't what a man earns that makes him rich," said the moralizer.

"No," rejoined the dilettante.

"It's usually what his father saved."

ECONOMY IN FEEDING

Good pasture is sweet and fragrant. These qualities are deficient in dry food, and they are essential to ensure thorough assimilation and prevent waste of food. Food not fully assimilated sooner or later impairs the health. During about twenty-five years Hargreaves has, without failure, efficiently and economically reduced these essential qualities, and its regular use with all classes of animals is highly recommended.

Thackeray's Memory

It was not only his memory that Thackeray gave to boys; he was always willing to devote his time to amusing them. He would take them to the pantomime and he would give them dinner first. On one occasion he took Herman Melville, then a lad, to dinner at the Garrick club. Years later Melville asked the great man if he remembered, having done so, "Why, of course," said Thackeray promptly; "and, what is more, I remember."

Thackeray gave you bedtime and a good night's sleep. He delighted that his host should recollect even the details of the entertainment. "Yes," said Thackeray, twinkling, "I always gave boys bedtime and a good night's sleep."

VOTE FOR DR. WARNOCK AND LARGER MARKETS.

John Herron is very much like Jim Jeffries—he can't come back.

Poor John! At last—too true. His light has fallen to a glimmer.

Miners! Arise in your might and down the Conservative cause which has done so much to down you.

It is said that the building in which the Conservatives of Blairmore hold their committee meetings is very much like the Conservative party itself, inasmuch as it has no foundation.

Let us work and stimulate over legitimate enterprise by giving it all the friendly encouragement we can and unite our industry, intelligence and capital in a common cause for the good of our town.

A copy of the midsummer number of the Macleod Advertiser, which has arrived at this office, is a comprehensive volume of interesting data concerning that progressive town and its rich farming district. It is mechanically constructed, ably written and nicely illustrated.

If the person who sent us in a letter last week to which there was no name attached would provide us with his name and sufficient proof we shall return the money which accompanied the letter and which was meant as payment for the insertion of the said epistle.

At the polls on Thursday next the workmen will not forget to ignore the pleadings of the Conservative boosters? The party which John Herron represents never seeks to cater to the wants of the working class but is always willing to do the biddings of those who are financially independent.

It is a strange fact that the whole time John Herron was in The Press it rained hard and the weather was cold and disagreeable, but on Thursday as soon as the Conservative candidate took his departure the rain ceased, the black clouds rolled away and the sun has shone ever since. The weather was chilly and so were John Herron's meetings.

Let us cultivate a public spirit and talk less and work more. Encourage our local authorities in making improvements. Speak up, speak well, talk encouragingly of our town and its bright prospects. It is these many little considerations that make a town grow. Nature has showered upon us her choicest blessings sings and with perfect unity and effort for the good of our common cause, great will be the result.

When addressing the electors of this constituency, John Herron complains of the high freight rates charged by the C.P.R. and that wheat can be shipped from Argentina to Canada for just about one-third what it costs to ship wheat over the C.P.R. from Alberta to Port Arthur. And all the while John is supporting the party that the C.P.R. has almost got the entire control of. "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

We overheard a miner say yesterday that if there were more railroads through this coal mining district there would be no strikers and the miners would not be subjected to such heavy losses. We believe that is true, and a big step towards remedying that great evil is to send Dr. Warnock to Ottawa, where he will advocate the extension and building of other railroads through this rich district. But if you send John Herron back a repetition of his past negligence is sure to follow.

What a Salad

When I see the names of Mr. Sifton and Mr. Bourassa stuck together, I am amply revenged for the attacks on me. If there is one man Mr. Bourassa hates it is Mr. Sifton, if there is one man he has insulted, it is Mr. Sifton. Now they are exchanging the kiss of peace and singing the choruses: "We must overthrow Laurier." When I see Mr. Borden, Mr. Sifton and Mr. Bourassa united against me, I say to myself "What a salad." I suppose Mr. Sifton furnishes the oil for it, and I am sure Mr. Bourassa supplies the vinegar, while poor Mr. Borden has to eat it. Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Ahuntsic, Aug. 23, 1911.

Tory Candidate Admits
Borden will be Defeated

Windsor—At a meeting at Belle River, Oliver Wilcox, the Conservative candidate in the north riding of Essex, created the sensation of the evening in his speech when he emphatically declared that he believed the Liberal government would be returned to power and that reciprocity would come into force.

"What difference does it make?" he asked. "I believe that Laurier will carry the country, and you will have reciprocity and therefore a vote for me will not matter."

Dr. D. Warnock Will be Here Next Week

Dr. D. Warnock, the future M.P. for this riding will arrive in The Pass the early part of next week and will conduct a meeting in the opera house at Coleman on Tuesday evening. He will speak at Frank on Wednesday afternoon and at Blairmore on Wednesday night. The address at Blairmore will be given in the opera house and will commence at 8 p.m. Other talented speakers will be present.

Mr. James Eads Howe, millionaire hobo and leader of the National Welfare Association, has announced the name of his proposed weekly mouthpiece of the "great unwashed" to be the Hobo News. J. H. Rev. T. M. Murray gave an interesting lecture on "Missions," at the regular meeting of the Guild held on Monday evening in the Presbyterian church.

Addresses the Guild

Rev. T. M. Murray, of Coleman,

It was missionary night and the subject was a very appropriate one. The speaker handled the subject in an able manner and did justice to the time at his disposal. The reverend gentleman dwelt principally on Africa and its 180 million people, on India, which has a population of over 300 million, China and its 400 million souls and Japan with its 52 million people.

The next meeting of the Guild will be taken charge of by the devotional committee.

The Rise and Fall of the Catalogue

A few years ago the large mail order houses in the United States ruined hundreds of small towns. These towns were at one time thriving communities with several business houses and hundreds of prosperous inhabitants. But the catalogue was placed in their homes and a wave of mail order purchasing swept over the people with the result that the local merchants went out of business. The farmers were among the guilty ones, and on their heads fell the first punishment, their home market being lost. The farmers at last opened their eyes to the cause, began to patronize the home merchants and to cut out the mail order houses. The result was inevitable, and today the small towns are thriving business places. One of those towns in particular once had a population of something over a thousand people; business houses were empty, scores of vacant buildings were almost hidden by weeds and the mail order houses did a land office business in that town; adjoining farm land was selling at $55 to $80 per acre, and very little was changing hands at that. The farmers woke up and today there is no better town of its size in the States; new public buildings have been erected and the residential part is built up with modern houses; land is selling from $79 to $100 per acre and every one is prosperous. Not a dozen packages of mail order goods go into town in a month and those who do get them once in a while, sneak to the depot at night after the goods—they are ashamed to let people know about it.—Traders' Gazette.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN SUPPOSING JUST SUPPOSING, THE MUTINEERS MAROONED CAPTAIN LAURIER

Over Thirty Miners Working at Blairmore

Several more men have been taken on at the Blairmore mine this week and there are now over thirty working there. Twelve big, hearty coal diggers came in from Coleman on Monday evening and sought work at the West Canadian Collieries' mine. Suitable accommodations have since been provided for them and they are now engaged in mining the "black diamonds."

A large number of miners from Coleman and other places have asked for work at the mines here and the management report that they can get all the help they require. More miners will be taken in shortly, and the old activity will soon be resumed.

Oh the dreary days of rain and snow have passed and once again the calm and peaceful sunny days have come. Let us all hope that the dull days of the strike and struggle will soon pass and we will again enjoy the busy, prosperous times as of old.

Election Reports Will be Received at Opera House

Telegraphic reports of the political battle will be received over the wire at the Blairmore opera house, on Thursday evening next. The C. P. R. telegraph wire is being strung along from the station to the opera house so that reports may be received constantly and given out before an anxious crowd immediately they are received.

Those that are fond of applause while they pursue it, how little do they taste it when they have it. South.

What the Conservatives Would do if Given the Chance

"Just as the Conservative party has succeeded in fighting its way into some degree of favor with the country, and reaching a point where victory may possibly be achieved, along comes Mr. George Taylor, former chief Conservative whip, with an ill-considered remark in the House of Commons that 'it would be better for the Government to drive the strikers to work at the point of the bayonet.'"

It is just blithering blather like this blundering ass, who keep the Conservative party on the bun. This outrageous remark will be used with fatal effect by the Grits at the ensuing elections. The labor element on the prod is no joke when seats have to be won."

"I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success," writes Mrs. I. Radford, Polesville, Md. For sale by all dealers.

Church of England Has a Good Worker

The congregations in Coleman, Frank and Blairmore are once more being organized. The new rector, Leslie Fordham, arrived two weeks ago and is fast making friends. He contemplates holding services alternately in the afternoons at Frank and Blairmore and two services each Sunday in Coleman. The services which he has conducted are brief, bright and brotherly. Mr. Fordham has had a large experience in church work and shows every prospect of proving a popular pastor.

The afternoon service will be held in Frank Methodist church on Sunday next at 3.15 o'clock, when Mr. Fordham hopes to have the sympathy of all those who are interested in the welfare of the Church of England services.

ERRATUM

The item in Blairmore notes regarding C. of E. services is not correct. That page was printed before the mistake was discovered.

We were agreeably surprised to hear the Frank orchestra at the Paul Gilmore comedy drama in Blairmore on Friday night. The musicians must be congratulated on their rendering such inspiring music and we hope we may soon see the Frank boys on a par with any of the orchestras in any of our larger cities.

For bowel complaints in children always give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil. Is is certain to effect a cure and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. No physician can prescribe a better remedy. For sale by all dealers.
